As the ship dropped to the ground it buried its nose and part of the landing gear 2 feet in the Rocky soil. Gasoline from its tanks, broken by the snapping off of wings, became ignited. An explosion followed, throwing burning gasoline over the passengers and crew—on their bodies, experts with the party declared.

On the arm of one of the pilots there was strapped a wrist watch that had stopped at 11:01. Pilots were required to carry Pacific Coast time on flights between Albuquerque and Los Angeles, which placed the time of the crash at one minutes after noon mountain time. Valencia County suthorities said this would indicate the plane never passed over Grant on the morning of its fatal ride on the winds, but had gone directly from Albuquerque to the point of the crash.

Although the Soviet could utilize the money realized from the sale of the railway for its five-year industrialization plan, it can not risk selling it to the Chinese because France would immediately lay claim to the money on the ground that the railway was built partly with French funds on loans never repaid.

The result probably would be similar to what happened when the Soviet sent large shipments of gold to the United States last year. Although Russla succeeded in keeping the buillion from French hands, it does not relish a repetition of that performance.

Optimism Here Changes.

There was a corresponding atmosphere of optimism here that suddenly changed, almost over night. The first reaction to the MacDonald offer seems to have been so favorable that agreement was considered imminent, but analysis only served to make more apparent how difficult it would be toget the Senate to accept unless better ferms are made.

The administration wants to be in the position to say, in any case, that can be had at this time, after firm finalistness upon the principles dominant here. It would then be up to Senate to decide whether to take that bargain in the larger interest of Anglo-American acord, to say nothing of putting an end to the competitive race in cruisers and effecting the whole bargain.

The Platt automobile was badly damaged and was left in the branch overnight. Platt expressed doubt as to whether it could again be put in running condition. State has been presenting evidence for three days, 27 witnesses having been called. Eleven of this group have been examined. Testimony of the officers who accompanied Police Chief Aderholt to the union headquarters of the Loray mill strikers on the night of June 7 was one of the highlights of the trial last week.

In all of the testimony, the fact has been stressed that the police chief and the other officers were leaving the grounds when the shots were fired on them. The officers say they had made no move to draw their pistols up to the time the first shot was fired. They admit having arrested one of the strikers for attempting to halt them as they entered the grounds.

STATES AND PUBLIC LANDS.

When President Hoover proposed to investigate the advisability of turning the surface rights to Government lands in the West ever to the States he aroused anew the hopes of these States that the Government will withdraw from the role of land owner. Senator King, of Utah, lost no time in introducing a bill which would give the States full control of all unappropriated lands within their borders. The President's recent announcement was a signal for Western mem bers of Congress to plan big things for their States. It appears that Senator King won a tight race in proposing legislation of this sort, and to him will go the glory of cham-tinction in the minds of his constituents, The President's warning that in no cir umstances would be consider relinquishment of the mineral rights of Government lands to the States does not deter the Westerners in asking for more. Regardless of what the findings of his proposed commission might be, the Western States will demand full control over this land. The prompt action of Senator King indicates that they will pay little attention to the survey, if it is to be based on transference of grazing rights only.

ptoning the Western cause-not a mean dis-

The gift which Senator King proposes is of considerable value, as may be seen from a recent statement by the Geological Survey. The public domain contains approximately 200,000,000,000 tons of coal. More than 500,000 acres of phosphate land will furnish 8,000,000,000 tons of fertilizer to American armers of the future. Vast potash deposits are also included. Sixty-five oil and gas fields, with an annual production of 33,000,-000 barrels of oil, have been developed on Government land. In addition it is estimated that Government-owned oil shale will yield 66,000,000,000 barrels of oil when prices are high enough to warrant its extraction. Potential waterpower development of this land is placed at 15,000,000 horsepower.

Some of the area is valuable also for grazing purposes, but it is obvious from the survey that its chief worth lies in its mineral There is little possibility that the States would accept the responsibility of administering 194,000,000 acres of land solely for grazing rights. On the other hand the Government will not relinquish this vast notential wealth to control of the States until ts conservation for the whole people is asfured. A virtual deadlock exists before the Survey has begun.

BRITISH LABOR IN CANADA

Canada appears to have had enough of the experiment of employing British miners in the harvest fields. A year ago 10,000 miners were brought from Cardiff, Liverpool and Glasgow to help the Canadian wheat growers garner the grain of Manitoba, Alberta and Saskatchewan. These men were of a sturdy physique and anxious to earn the wages of $25 a week, with board and lodging free.

But the work to which they were introduced differed materially from that to which they had been accustomed. Down in a coal mine is altogether different from following binder and a thresher in the broiling sun of a western prairie. The Welshman or the Scot, who had no difficulty in giving a good scount of himself in mining coal a quarter a mile below the surface, found that he was not in the running with the 12-year-old boy to the manner born in the harvest fields. The result, therefore, was by no means sat Isfactory. These immigrants were offered Jarms free, together with a loan to each of $500 if they would remain in the Dominion. Few of them remained. They preferred the 'banks and braes' of the old sod, even though compelled to exist on "the dole," to life in such surroundings as those presented by the wheat lands of Canada.

It is not surprising in such circumstances that J. H. Thomas, minister of labor in the MacDonald cabinet, finds the immigration authorities at Ottawa very cool toward his proposal to send a few thousand more British laborers to the Dominion. The unemploynent situation in England, Wales and Scotland is as acute as ever, and Mr. Thomas is In Canada for the purpose of eliciting the aid of the Dominion authorities for the relief of the situation. He appears to have come with two propositions: one that Canada shall hold out inducements sufficiently at tractive as to assure a rush of immigration cross the sea. This proposal, according to reports from Ottawa, has been turned down Canada has no present need for unskilled immigrants.

The second proposal has to do with the shipment of British coal to the Dominion. Mr. Thomas told his hearers that substantial help would be afforded the "old country" if Canada will help out by purchasing coal in and learned that it was a combination of large quantities from Great Britain instead of from the United States. But Canada has vast coal areas in Nova Scotia, and in addition to that the Canadian National Railways. the largest single consumer of coal in the Dominion owns coal mines in Ohio, which were acquired when the assets of the Grand Trunk were absorbed by the great transontinental system. Altogether Premier Mac Donald's emissary has achieved very little thus far in his efforts to obtain relief for the labor situation in Great Britain.

WORLD'S SPEED RECORD.

Great Britain was given little competition n the Schneider Cup race, and the event was consequently less interesting than it might have been. From the standpoint of the participants, however, it was a complete success. A new world speed record was made, and the events were completed without any serious accident. One Italian entry was forced down. but was apparently uninjured.

The Schneider race is a sporting event, but is also of scientific value in the development of aviation. Planes built at great cost for the contest are good for nothing but racing. Safety, fuel economy, carrying power, comfort and everything are sacrificed to speed. Previous attempts to set new speed records in filmsy crafts of this kind have been so replete with fatalities that it is an achievement to have conducted the race without a tragedy. However, the practical value of these contests in pointing the way to greater speed for commercial and military planes has een such that the risk is considered justified.

The winning British plane, a supermarine Rolls-Royce 5-6, piloted by H. R. D. Waghorn, did not fulfill the predictions of many enthusiasts, who expected to witness a tremendous gain in speed over the previous The fastest speed previously recorded was 318 miles per hour. This rate was increased to 331 miles by Waghorn, but predictions had been that the race would be won at a speed of 350 to 360 miles. There is nothing to regret in the fact that builders of the racing planes made sufficient allowance for safety to keep the speed increase within moderation.

There was keen disappointment because the United States did not participate in the race. America's only hope was the racer Mercury, which failed to fly. In spite of all that Lieut. Alford J. Williams could do, the tiny craft would not leave the water. The wing space was so small that the 24-cylinder engine would not lift the craft, even at a speed of 106 miles per hour. American aviators, however, may learn as much from the failure of the Mercury as will the British from their cup-winning plane.

THE "CONSENT DECREE."

Nine years ago last February, a few nonths before the great slump in live-stock values brought ruin to the live-stock industry. the "big packers" consented, under pressure to abandon all lines of business not directly connected with the meat industry. Shortly after this "consent decree" was accepted by the packers those corporations divested themselves of all their collateral interests, including the ownership of stock in terminal railroads and their interests in the stockyards. For the last nine years they have handled meats and the by-products of the slaughter houses exclusively, and their products have been distributed entirely through retail stores in which they have no interest.

Mr. Wallace during his tenure as Secretary of Agriculture was a strong advocate of a modification of the agreement between the packers and the Government. He believed that if the packer were permitted to engage in the retailing of his products the result would be beneficial alike to the producer of live stock and the consumer of meats.

On August 12 the packers united in a petition to the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia to modify the consent decree so as to permit them to engage in the retail trade n meats as well as other food products. The Department of Justice, desiring to ascertain the sentiment of all interested producers of foods, and packers of food products, before the petition comes up for argument in Ocber, called upon the Department of Agriculture to make an inquiry. In accordance with that request the department has been conducting hearings, and has received in addition written statements from all sections of the country from live-stock associations. fruit growers, fruit packers and a host of other interests.

While the live-stock people who have been heard are unanimously in favor of modification, and while there is an evident disposition on the part of practically all the farm cooperative associations to favor modification, some objection has arisen from producers of honey, some Western poultry raisers and some other smaller bodies. Thus far no objection has been raised by growers of cattle, hogs or sheep.

The Supreme Court of the District will consider the petition early in October. The out come will be awaited with interest, for it may mark an important departure in the system of marketing meats.

A JAY WALKER SURVEY.

An inquisitive writer in the Boston Transcript has been conducting a quiet survey into the prevalence of "jay walking." He desired to ascertain at first hand which community in this broad land is inhabited by the very worst of the species of foolhardy pedestrians, and on the other hand which municipality is most free from the people who court 'suicide by the auto route." In order to extend this survey over a very wide range the Boston investigator traveled upward of five thousand miles. Syracuse, N. Y., according to the report which he sends to the Transcript, is the ideal spot for motorists, because it is in the Salt City that the pedestrian is most careful to give the man at the steering wheel every possible opportunity to get out of the way. It required but a few moments in Syracuse to convince the surveyor that the foot passenger never for a moment thinks of crossing a thoroughfare when the traffic lights are against him. The visitor was so impressed with conditions in the matter of jay walking that he could not refrain from inquiring as to the method adopted by the authorities to bring about this beatific condition. He in terviewed the mayor, the chief of police and other officials, as well as individual walkers, natural common sense of the people of the city, together with an educational campaign and an occasional prosecution of violators of the city ordinances. Today Syracuse may therefore be regarded as the safest municipality in the country for the motorist. He need never fear an encounter with a jay walker. There are none in Syracuse.

The survey ended west of the Mississippi. n the home State of Senator Norris. There in the capital of Nebraska, which State claims fewer illiterates per 100,000 of population than any other save Iowa, practically all the walkers are of the jay variety, "going against the lights" and "either walking or running directly into the path of autos which were proceeding properly." The people of Lincoln. declares this authority, are "appar ently willing to have all the responsibility fall on the fellow behind the steering wheel knowing that no matter how the signal light may read the motorist must protect the foot passenger."

It is inconceivable that Senator Norris will fail to defend the residents of the capital of his State. The right to go against danger signals is invariably exercised by the Ne oraska solon. Besides, motorists are a specles of power trust, bent upon enslaving the common people. Senator Norris is by nature champion of every jay walker in the world.

General prosperity has increased the numper of purchasers of diamonds and other precious stones, particularly large and expensive gems, according to Dr. George Frederick Kunz, international known authority. whose annual reports on "Precious and Semi-Precious Stones" and "Platinum Group Metals" were released for publication here yesterday. Dr. Kunz denies reports that there has been a tendency to lower prices in the diamond market and says that "on the whole, prices have remained almost constant.

Such decreases as there have been, h points out, were mostly confined to the small ow-grade diamonds which have made up the bulk of the heavy increases in production in he past few years.

The emerald is by far the most expensive of precious stones, and is followed in order by the ruby, the diamond, sapphire and pearl. "Partly because changes in style require hem," observes Dr. Kunz, "and partly because great increases in wealth have increased the number of potential purchasers, the larger stones are now much in demand.

where formerly three or four, or even twenty or more smaller stones were used in a setting. The vogue for very large stones, whether liamonds, emeralds, rubies or sapphires, has never been so great as it is at the present time, and never before have there been so many large, beautiful stones available, partly rom new production, and partly from old family or royal jewels."

Such large stones, Dr. Kunz says, are not cut in brilliant form, but in the plain emerald or degree cut. This requires the finest grade of stones, as this type of cutting brings out imperfections in color more than does the brilliant cutting.

Emerald-cut diamonds of 15 to 22 carats weight, from faultless material, now bring ,000 a carat; emeralds of 9 to 12 carats are worth $5,000 to $8,000 a carat; fine Burma rubles of 7 to 9 carats are $3,000 earat, and sapphires of 20 to 30 carats bring $1,000 to $1,500 a carat.

In the part where he deals with excepionally fine stones found in the past year, Dr. Kunz says: "An 18-carat red diamond was found at Lichtenburg. The same district also produced a stone of 1,500 carats, second in size only to the Cullinan diamond, but unfortunately the stone was of poor quality and was valued at only $15,000. A 282carat stone was found at Barkley West and a smaller one of 33 1/4 carats. The Premier Mine in South Africa produced one stone of 200 carats and another of 130 carats. The Phoenix Mine reported one stone of 155 carats and another of 85 carats.

"A rose diamond of 111 carats, valued at $500,000 has been reported from the same section of Minas Geraes, Brazil, that produced the famous 'Southern Star' in 1852.' The total imports of precious and semiprecious stones, pearls and imitation stones to the United States increased from $68,729,-942 in 1927 to $74,559,097 in 1928, an increase of 8.5 per cent. All items in the list shared in the increase. Of the total increase the largest item was $1,659,811 for cut diamonds, followed by $1,527,430 for imitation stones and $1,086,048 for pearls. Any fears for an oversupply of diamonds have been dispelled, Dr. Kunz says, by the control features provided by the new precious stones act. In this manner the production of alluvial stones in the Lichtenburg district of South Africa was reduced by about one-half, and since the Namaqualand production was controlled by the government, no serious disturbance was made dur-

Governmental restrictions on the production and sale of diamonds in South Africa, says Dr. Kunz, has resulted in the smuggling of illicit stones from prohibited territory into producing territory. Some stones are smuggled to Europe where they can be disposed of free of restrictions.

"In the United States," the expert reports, "the 20 per cent import duty has resulted in some smuggling, and efforts are now being made to do away with this by reducing the daty to a point where smuggling is no longer

In reality as in fiction the spice of life is conflict. However desirable peace and security may seem to the timid and the weary, they afford no thrill. Life is a bore when the game is won.

Do you remember how dull and empty life seemed when the great war ended? Young men came home tormented by a restlessness that the ways of peace could not relieve. The zest of life was gone.

Young men dream of making a fortune and retiring to enjoy life. but the years teach them wisdom and few are willing to quit the struggle when their fortune is made. Those who do are unhappy in dleness and introspection shortens their days.

Their discontent may be due in some measure to the fact that ork has become a habit, but the greater part of it is caused by their need of conflict. They may cultivate a hobby to occupy their time. but it is shadow boxing. There is no fun in playing if there is no danger of losing.

Mr. and Mrs. Barnes started early in August for their trip to Scandinavia and journeyed to Spitzbergen on the Prince Olav, a private yacht which is now being used as a passenger steamer. Answer—Continental Oil Co. is one of the smaller of the Standard Oil subsidiaries, it is quite thoroughly integrated and earnings improvement in the past twelve months have been rapid. Enthusiasm has been aroused by the opening of new oil fields and merger negotiations, although speculation on this basis alone involves considerable of the gambling element.

G. B.—I bought 20 shares of American Woolen common at 22½. Has this stock a future? Would you advise selling or holding?

Answer—In recent years the shares of the American Woolen Co. have lost their attraction as an investment. The future does not seem to hold out much hope for the company. Would advise selling it and reinvesting the money in something which yields you a dividend.

thank you to give me as much advice regarding this company as possible. Answer-Earnings trend for Lorlilard Co. has been downward over a period of years with 75 cents earned in 1928, against $1.25 in 1927 and $2.58 in 1926. Decline largely due to the heavy advertising appropriation maintained for exploitation of Old Gold cigarettes and also to narrowing of profit margin due to price cutting in the industry. In view of further large advertising appropriations in the current year, it is doubtful if a more favorable earnings showing will be possible this year in spite of the fact that sales are showing substantial increases. Under the circumstances, stock would not appear to have near term attraction.

Worried by Price Decline. About midnight the door of her room opened and the countess came out, clothed only in her nightdress and slippers and carrying an unlighted candle. The police minister, who was in the hall, crouched against the side of the wall. But the precaution was unnecessary. The woman passed without seeing him, She walted up the staircase until she came to the third floor, which contained the servants quarters. Presently she reached a dingy passage which led to an unfrequented chamber. She stealthly crossed the room brushed saide a great tapestry, revealing a walnut panel. She touched a secret spring and the door of a closet flew open, displaying a row of bottles containing poison. Selecting one of these, she placed it in her nightdress and returned to her room. The next morning she was placed Worried by Price Decline.

A. M.—I hold 200 shares of Reiter-Foster Oil Corporation, bought at $12 a share. The decline in its price worries me and I would like to have you advise me what to do. I also have 100 shares of Transcontinental Oil at 13%. What is the outlook for this company?

Answer—Reiter-Foster Oil Corporation was organized in December, 1924; 1928 was the first year in which the company showed a profit. when $1.07 per share was earned. No earnings reports have been published as yet this year. The stock of the company must be regarded as a speculation, and while it may do better market-wise when conditions in the oil industry improve. The stock could not be considered as a conservative investment, and we can not attempt to predict future price fluctuations. Transcontinental Oil, paying no dividend, must also be regarded as a speculative issue. However, recapitalization and management readjustment lend to this issue moderate attraction for long-term holding.

MARY DELLA

A Serial Story

CHAPTER XXXI.

When Mary Della opened her eyes again, she lay very still trying to recall what had happened. And then she remembered hitting the Rad Mask over the head with the lampy of reaching down to tear off his mask, of failing on something surorisingly

She realized that she was lying on the hard floor now. Was the Red Mask still somewhere in the dark room? What if she moved? Would he attack her? She held her breath and listened.

she held her breath and listened. But only a bass snore from her mother's bedroom disturbed the silence. Slowly she got to her feet, moved her arm in a circle cautiously; but snoountered nothing.

However, much the amazing ex-

However, much the amazing experience had frightened Mary Della at the time, it had left her calm. She had lost all sense of fear and her only concern about the Red Mask now was his identity. Why had he come here? Did he know that also had written the note to the police? Had he thought to diminate her as a possible witness against him if he were ever caught? But he had had every opportunity to kill her there by the door, and he had only taken himself off as fast as he could, leaving her with additional information to give the police.

Considering the force with which she had brought the metal lamp down on his head, it was a big wonder he had been able to leave the

She went to the door, resisted an impulse to open it and imspect the landing, and turned the key.

But as she drew a foot back to kick the corner of the rug in place, she saw what appeared to be bits of broken plaster between the rug and the door. Fallen plaster was nothing unusual in the Chubb flat, however.

Then she turned out the living room light and went to her room. When Mrs. Chubb went to Mar. Cella's room Monday morning to waker, she found the bed empty, but note pinned to the covers read:

"Be beet to three out."

"There's something funny going on around here. Henry," Mrs. Chubb told her husband when he entered the kitchen. "Mary Della's up already and she left a note on her bed saying she was going to walk around the block. Goodness knows how long she's been up. And night before last I thought I heard something heavy fall out in the living room. I got up and opened our door, but the living room was dark and everything quiet; so I went back to bud"

"Looks like you just got to have something to fret about, mother." Mr. Chubb replied, sitting down to the table. "I think something funny's going on, too, but it don't worry me any. Mary Della's got plenty of sense and plenty of nerve, and I'm betting she's not doing anything she

"Have you noticed she's not going out nights to meet Joe Speaks any mote?" Mrs. Chubb asked, lifting two fried eggs shed a slice of bacon from the pen to Mr. Chubb's plate.

"No, I hadn't noticed it, but that ought to suit you. You never did like the Speaks boy anyhow, did you?"
"That hasn't got anything to do with it," Mrs. Chubb declared.
"Ther's a reason for the way the child's acting and I'd like to know "Well-", pop. Hello, mom. Am I late?" Mary Della, amiling, sailed through the door and took her place at the table. "Couldn't sleep, mom." ahe added. "Just had to get out and walk it of."

"Walk what off?" asked the mother "Whatever it was that wouldn't let me sleep. Say, it's late isn't it? Never mind the toest, mom. I'll have to Miriam was all ears, drinking in the delectable reports of Mary Delia's entertaining week-end.

"But what I can't get into my bean, honey," she told Mary Delia, "is why the Red Mask should go to your house. Do you know, it looks like he must of heard something about, you being out there when he killed that Ricks git! * "Don't you think so.

"I don't know, Miriam" Not changing the subject too quick, but did you ever hear Joe sing falsetto?" "Sing what? I don't even know what it is?"

"Well. I'm not so sure myself."
Mary Della admitted, "but I think it means to sing in a high voice. If a man was singing falsetto, I guess he would sound like a woman. See?"
"That's enough explanation for me, but this is the first time I ever heard that Joe Speaks could sing anything but his own praise. Sure you aren't talking about Timmy, now? He can sing just like a woman."

Miriam, do you think the Red Mask can be anybody we know?"
"Honey! Are you batty? What do you think ** Oocooh ** So that's it. Poor kid; they've worried you about this thing until you're getting balmy."

"But I'm not, Miriam." Mary Della resented the form of Miriam's sympathy had taken. "I'm merely trying to test out every posibility, and whether it sounds sensible or not, it's something to think about. De you remember that night in the arm

"I'm not suspecting anybody, Miriam. I'm just asking myself questions. I can't get over the feeling that the Red Mask wouldn't of come to my house Saturday hight unless ha knew a lot more about me than I know about him. And you mustn't dance."

"Hush!" Mirlam cried. "Don't you understand? The Red Mask is a murderer! You couldn't think that about."

Budu! ..." Mary Della cried. "Don't say it. You don't understand what I'm going through, Miriam. I'm not accusing Joe of anything. I know it couldn't hars been Joe Saturday night."

"You don't mean you got a good lock at the Red Mask's face?"
"On no, not that. It was dark. Miriam, and it was just by the dim glow from the fiashlight that I made out a vague white face and the mask.

But in the darkness he looked about Joe's size and I didn't sleep a wink all night for thinking about it. Nor last night, either. And before breakfast this morning I went out.

"For what, precious?"
"To find out if they'd kept Joe in jail. Some cop took him in after his racket with Timmy at the park, you know."
"You told me that, but . . . they wouldn't keep him in a cell two nights for that"
"But they did." Mary Della declared. "Whoever answered the phone sitting in the car with me when the woman was killed. But look at the clock—we've got to fly ..."

Joe's stay in jail had two important developments. Before they locked him up, they searched his pockets and among papers in an inside coat pocket they came across what appeared to be an innocent note from a young man to a young woman. The policeman conducting the search merely "Bet you never saw one like that before," Speaks countered. "Give the super one look at that note and he'll make a sergeant out of you. Remember that note about the Red Mask murder on the Cheahire road? The piece it was wrote on was torn off that letter. See?"

"And where'd you get it?"
"Oh. that'd be telling." Joe chided.
"But if the super wants the straight dope, I can give it to him."
"I think you're giving me a good time," the officer declared pleasantly enough. "But I wen't take no

If the superintendent wasn't disposed to make a sergeant of the officer who left the note under his office door, he was/certainly elated aufficiently to send him word of commendation. And a good half hour before city court opened Monday morning he had Joe Speaks brought to his office.

The superintendent frowned. "Tell him I'll see him in about ten minutes. No—watt a minute."

He motioned to Speaks to wait a moment and went to the outer office. "Hello, Ray. I've got a fellow in the office for a little questioning. Can you wait?"

"That's funny," the superintendent declared. "This fellow I've got it here is just about to give me some dope about that note."

It is our honest conviction that the clothing of the young man of high school and college age should receive as much attention as that of any other member of the family. To promote this thought we especially supervised the design of Harleigh Suits. They were made to stimulate the young man's pride in appearance... to make him feel at ease whether it be at a prom or in the principal's office. ## Wives of Tomorrow

The Separate Vacation.

When Paula asked advice about her husband who wanted a "separate" vacation after two years of marriage, we asked the wives to decide Paula's problem—reserving our own opinion. Here are two letters of very unwise advice.

Dear Miss McDonald:

If Paula lets that man own of her sight she is a very silly woman. Any man who has the audacity to tell his wife that he would like a rest from her society—and this after two years of marriage—isn't to be trusted beyond his own back yard. Tell her to pack her things and go along, and keep a good lookout even, at that. I can not imagine what a married man is thinking of to suggest such a thing, I would like to catch my husband suggesting such a thing, He wouldn't dare. I think it's siff's fault when a man gets the upper hand. They don't start out right in the first place. My husband would not even expect a vacation if anything prevented my going along, and that's how it should be. Tell Paula to stand on her rights. If she gives in now he will be boss, and believe me it will be "separate vacations" for the rest of their days.

MRS. K. L. M.

Well, now you know about Mr. and Mrs. K. L. M.—and who is "boos" there. Read on and see what another wife has to say:

Dear Miss McDonald—If my husband were to ask me for a rest from my society, I would give him a rest for the balance of his days. What Stories of Invention. I. THE TYPEWRITER.

HEN I write articles for the newspapers. I almost always use e typewriter. My typewriter is a small one, weighing about eight pounds, and I carry it around with me during my travels. It is called "a portable."

Today I am thinking back to the time when there were no typewriters. Seventy years ago, people always wrote letters by hand. Some persons were excellent penmen, but the writing of many letters was tiresome.

lodel of Typewriter Made in 1868 In Milwaukee there lived a man named Christopher Sholes. He pub-lished a newspaper, but during his spare time he worked on what most persons would have called "a wild idea." His plan was to invent a ma-chine which could be used for writ-ing.

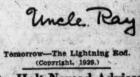

chine which could be used for writing.

Sholes thought that there could be "keys" and when a person struck one of the keys, a letter would be printed. To help him make a model he called on two of his friends—Soule and Glidden.

The three men worked until they produced a machine which had a disc with letters. By pressing type bars, the letters were stamped on paper.

Before long, Remington & Sons bought out the interest of Sholes in the patent, paying him $12,000. This may have seemed like a large sum to him, but since that day many millions of dollars have been made in profits from his invention.

Modern typewriters are much improved over the early models. An expert typist today can write 200 words a minute.

Dr. Holt Named Adviser For Foreign Students

Dr. William Stull Holt has been appointed adviser to students from foreign countries, a newly created office at George Washington University, Dr. Cloyd Heck Marvin, president of the University, announced yesterday.

It is believed that George Washington is the first institution of higher education in the United States to establish such an office. Last year 43 foreign countries were represented in the George Washington student body. The office is created in the interest of such students.

Disillusionment.

Disillusionment.

But, in the case of the baseball celebrity or hero, the reduction from wast importance to vast unimportance may be and frequently is arbitrarily and abruptly decreed by the employer for reasons of malice or business expediency and in such a cynical way that it is beautiful to find the customers still eager to acclaim such idols.

The more experienced athletes, doubtless make calm and fairly accurate estimate of the sentimental value of these outbursts, but the younger players probably accept some or all of it as genuine and their disillusionment, which is inevitable, will be bitter in proportion to their belief in the cheers and the laudatory essays in the papers.

The customers are creatures of brief memory and a simple and childlike faith, which is a fortunate circumstance from the point of view of the baseball stockholders.

(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CEAN CITY, N. J., Sept. 8.—

Though much has been accomplished toward solving the problem of filling line vacancies at end and guard—which seemed the most difficult task confronting the coaches before the training season opened—the Georgetown University football mentors are now wrestling with another problem that promises to be more troublesome.

As the second week of conditioning for the 1929 campaign opens Head Coach Lou Little and his assistants are frankly worried over the back field situation and they declared to-night that all possible time would be devoted to the ball carrying talent the coming week in an effort to form a satisfactory quartet behind the line.

What adds to the intricacies of the problem now is the forced idle—

Boxek Not at Camp;
Return Doubted.

Barabas is nursing a wrenched left knee, while Scalzi has a similar allment in the left shoulder, and Leary is rendered of little use by a sprained left wrist. It appeared tonight after examinations by Trainer Harry Crowley that it would be a couple of days before any of the trio can resume hard work. In the meantime all they will be permitted to do is to observe the instruction of the other backs, only three of whom, Joe Gardner, John Hannigan and John Hudak, saw more than a few minutes of service last season.

In addition to the temporary loss of Barabas, Scalzi and Leary, the unaccountable absence of Johnny Bozek, fastest back on the squad last year, is causing the coaches to work overtime finding capable replacements. As Bozek hasn't even communicated so far with Coach Little or any of the players, regarding ha absence from camp, it is thought unlikely that he will return for football this year.

Of the present group of ball toilers there is not one who shapes up as the field general of the caliber of Raiph Duplin, who graduated. Neither is there one who appears to answer the locaches' prayer for a plunging back, the lack of whom Georgetown has felt sorely for the last five years.

broke 90 for the first time in his golding career, was third, with a card of 88—22—67.

The annual handicap of the championship at the Town and Country Club was won yesterday by Maurice Eiseman, who defeated Willard Goldheim, 4 and 3. In the semifinal round Goldheim, 4 and 3.

The team match yesterday afternoon on the course of the Argyle Club between teams of the Bannockburn and Argyle Clubs resulted in a victory for the visitors by the score of 11 points to 8, with an individual match and a best ball match ending all even. One of the individual contests, in which M. R. Robb, Bannockburn, and Wilbur A. Taylor were opponents, was won by the former by the slim margin of 1 up.

The pair were all even on the seventeenth tee and after a series of missed shots, Robb finally holed out in 5 on a par 3 hole, winning the laster season and probably, as a result, is a step or two further advanced than his rivals.

NEW YORK, Sept. 8 (N.Y.W.N.S.).

Babe Ruth's forty-second home run made a game safe for the Yankees and Roy Sherid, one of their best young pitchers, today and brought out six 1929 straw hats. Just as in the case of home run No. 41, made yesterday, there were two men on the bases when the big hitter swung, and he is now nearing the top in batting across runs in his league. He sent over four today, and the Yankees won from the dispirited Detroit Tigers by a score of 9 to 3.

Yes, the Babe knocked in four and EW YORK, Sept. 8.—Here are some poignant facts concerning the fortieth Futurity, which can't fail next Saturday to top other races in world history as regards its gross value and pay its winner more than $100,000, that being something no other race anywhere, ever did. Oldest and most popular of American races for 2-year-olds, the Futurity is a dash of about 7 furiongs—6½ furiongs, to be exact—over the Widener straightaway, which slants across the infield of the gorgeous Belmont Fark course at Queens, Long Island, and is the finest thing in its line ever designed for thoroughbred horse racing. As the name implies, the Futurity is a produce race, and for the last eight or ten years it has been restricted to entire colts and fillies. For the fortieth there were 2,100 eligibles originally, the biggest number ever. originally, the biggest number ever. through their dams before they were in being. Of these 303 remain, and the nomination fees and forfeits foot up $28,600. To this sum must be added the Westchester Associaton's subscription of $23,000, making a pool of $113,800 to start wit.

Ten Starters.

In spite of the dazzling form revealed by Harry Payne Whitney's great coits, Boojum and Whichone, which finished one, two at Saratoga the other day in a revival of the Hopeful Stakes, Boojum winning more than $54,000, there can't be fewer than ten starters. The stake is too great.

fewer than ten starters. The stake is too great.

If Sonny Workman had assumed the responsibility of disobeying the order of young James Rowe, 4rainer of the Whitney Stable, in the room of the Minter the first James Rowe, who died suddenly some three weeks so, to ride Boojum out in the Hopeful, and pulled that brilliant colt to Whichone, which he might have done without risk, Boojum would get in the fortieth Futurity under 122 pounds. By winning more than $20,000 in a single race, Boojum incurred the extreme penalty, i.e., 8 pounds. His weight, accordingly, will be 130 pounds, a steadying burden, but no more weight than His Highness, Dominic and St. James won their Futurities under.

TODAY AT ROANOKE

30 Candidates Will Report; Huddle to Be Used.

SALEM, Sept. 8.—Thirty candidates for the Roanoke College football team will report to Coach Guy H. Spruhan tomorrow morning at 10 o'clock for preliminary training. Six letter men will be in the first squad, with the remainder made up of last year's reserves and promising men from the 1928 freshman eleven.

With the first game of the season booked with V. P. I. on September 28, Coach Spruhan will push his men to the limit to get them in shape for the Gobblers, who started practice on Labor Day.

According to present plans two practice sessions will be held each day until school opens on September 20, after which only one workout will be held.

The first conference game is booked with Emory and Henry on October 19. in Salem, and then Hampden-Sydney, Richmond and William and Mary are met on successive Saturdays. The Indian game will be played in Roanoke, while the other two are scheduled for Death Valley and Richmond. From the present outlook, Roanoke College is fairly well fortified in the middle of the line, both with regulars and reserves, despite the loss of a number of veterans. The strength of the ends is as yet an unknown quantity, but several likely looking candidates will be on hand for the places, and may show more ability than expected.

In Ninth.

Threatening enough gastures were made in the ninth and final time at bat to keep most of the tans in their seats until the finish. The round opened mildly enough when Kerr tossed out Tate, but Cronin came through with a liner-single to left. Hayes forced him at second but fans, on their way out, suddenly stopped when Lyons, covering first, missed Shires' toss after Pinch-nitter Harley Boss had hit a sharp roller to the doorway guardian. This put the tying run on second with only a single needed to bring it home, but Lyons saw to it that Capt. Joe Judge did not get this single.

Thomas and Burke between them granted but six hits, Johnny Kerr getting half of these, while the Nats were able to garner but seven from the combined offerings of the White Sox flingers, Goslin, with a double and single, being high gun.

Because of its closeness, the game was interesting throughout and the fact that five errors were charged seemed to add to the excitement. Hayes and Hoffman figured in the best fielding of the contest. Twice theyes of hits by catches of hard-in liners, while the home third-sacker contributed a read defensive gem in the third when he tossed out Art Shires on a swinging bunt almost directly over the base.

Tie With Leaders.
Should the Mount Rainier team win will drop the Hyattsville team from further competition.

The second Bowle-Capitol Heights game was also halted by darkness in the seventh.

IN ARLINGTON URGED Prisoner Who Attempted

Resident Points Oout Change Is Possible Without Loss of State Aid.

G. O. P. WOMEN TO MEET

ARLINGTON COUNTY.
BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.
Declaring that any move looking to the incorporation of Arlington County at this time would be most distrous, Harry C. Saffell, one of astrous, harry C. Sameli, one of Arlington County's oldest residents, said: "There are many different forms of government which the county could enjoy that would not mean the loss of State aid for roads

"For many years the people of Arlington County have been com-plaining of the alleged inefficiencies of the county government but up to this time no concrete plan which to this time no concrete plan which might offer a more modern form has been presented.

"Under the amendments to the Virginia constitution, the people have it in their power to adopt a commission form of government and elect any number of commissioners from the county at large, who shall give their entire time to the administration of the affairs of the county; they may adopt the city manager form, or we may continue the old county form with such changes as may seem best.

"What is most needed in Arlington County is more information among the masses as to their rights and what they really are entitled to in the way of a change. After the question is thoroughly discussed as to the true meaning of the different forms of government, then the people will be in a better position to go to the member of the House of Delegates and the Senate and present the kind of bill, which should be introduced and passed when the General Assembly convenes this January to permit and passed when the General Assem-bly convenes this January, to permit the people to adopt the form of gov-ernment most suitable to the great-ernment most suitable to the greatest number.

"In any case, whatever form 's adopted, it will not take from Arlington County State aid for schools and roads and its share of the gasline tax, unless the form of government be to incorporate the county into a city. To take that form would be most disastrous. Besides losing State aid, it might have a bearing upon what the Federal Government may have in view for the county."
